Types of Insurance Payments

- (1) Statutory damages to be paid to the injured party:
- For personal injury: treatment expenses, medical expenses, and damage for pain and suffering, etc.
 - For property damage: cost of repairs, cost of replacement, etc. (Note)

Provided, however, if there are rights to be acquired by subrogation from payment of damages, such amount shall be deducted. In addition, payment of consolation money, etc., paid to the injured party despite the lack of legal liability is not covered by insurance.

- (2) Expenditures by the Insured for protection or execution of rights where the Insured can claim damages against a third party.

- (3) Expenditures by the Insured for prevention of occurrence or spread of damages.

- (4) Expenditures by the Insured including litigation expenses and attorney's fees, made with the prior approval by SOMPO Japan

- (5) Expenditures by the Insured for cooperating with SOMPO Japan where a claim for damages is filed against the Insured and SOMPO Japan takes action to resolve the matter as necessary.

- (6) Expenditures for first aid or emergency measures for the injured party even where no liability has been found after implementing measures to prevent occurrence or spread of damages

*Expenses in (2) to (6) above will be subject to payment separately from the insurance amount.

*Where the damages exceed the insurance amount, payment of expenses in (4) will be made by calculating the total litigation expense * insurance amount/damages.

(Note) Expenses required for repair or replacement will be paid within the market price of the damaged property.
